STARTLING TALE.

American Prisoners in the Filipinos' Hands Shamefully Abused.

The Spanish Prisoners Had Also Been Treated Very Badly, Even Worse Than the Americans, Many Dying of Disease.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—The Bulletin publishes a startling story from the Philippines, regarding Lieut. Gilmore and the party from the Yorktown who were captured by the Filipines and who have been reported from official sources as being well cared for and well treated.

It appears that when the Americans reached San Isidor, where the York. town members and some soldiers and civilians had been imprisoned, they found the names of the prisoners scratched on the walls of the jail. Some letters from the men were found secreted under stones and a Spaniard who had been intrusted with several presented them to Gen. Lawton.

The letters told of the hardships the men were compelled to suffer, and begged that aid be sent them. The men complained that they had been starved, beaten and bound, and moreover, were in rags. One of the letters signed by Albert Lowenshon said that the Spaniards had been treated very badly, worse than the Americans, and that hundreds were dying of dysentery and other diseases, and that the government took no notice of the sickness prevailing.

In his letter Lowenshon, who was formerly of the steamship Zealandia, gave the list of prisoners held by the Filipinos as follows:

Prisoners from Yorktown: J. C. Gilmore, U. S, N.; W. Wilson, C. O.; M. P. Vandevil, S. M. M.; W. Ellsworth, C. O.; M. Swain, S. E. Edwards, S. E. D. S. E. Brisoloz, O. G.; A. P. Warson, apprentice; F. Anderson, landsman; captured at Baler, April 11; A. Dorrce, E. Honneman, Nevada cavalry, captured January 30; A. Bishop, 3d artillery, April 12; H. H. Huber, hospital corps and J, O'Brien, civilian, January 27.

TRANSVAAL SITUATION.

Question of Neutrality and Care of Our In terests in That Locality Not Yet Taken Up by Our Government.

Washington, Aug. 16.—The situation in the Transvaal is regarded by with comparative ease and won by officials here as critical. Charles Macrum is the United States consul stationed at Pretoria. He has sent a number of reports dealing with commercial affairs, but has not touched on the delicate political conditions existing.

The United States also has a consular agent, J. H. Manlon, at Johannes burg, but he has not been heard from since he was appointed. There have been recent press reports from Johannesburg that a colored blacksmith, Dreyfus was on the Isle du Diable. claiming to be an American, had been roughly handled by the field cornets, and that he had raised the question of his American citizenship, and had appealed to the American representative. The state department has been expecting to hear from Mr. Manlon on this case, but nothing has come.

Adm. Hoison's return will probably shed much light on the condition of affairs in the Boer country, and the extent of American interests, for while the Chicago was in South African waters the admiral spent much time at Pretoria and Johannesburg. The admiral has as yet made no report of his movements.

JOHN R. GENTRY WON.

he Little Bay Stallion is Still King of the Light Harness Racers-Time 2:03 1-2; 2:04 1-4-Searchlight Third.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 17. - The little bay stallion John R. Gentry is still king of the light harness racers. At the Rochester Driving park, Wednesday afternoon, the three greatest pacing stallions of the American turf, John R. Gentry, 2:001/2; Joe Patchen, 2:01¼, and Searchlight, 2:04½, waged a battle royal for the supremacy. The attendance was 8,000. The track was very fast, and, although there was a slight breeze down the home stretch, it did not seem to hold the racers as they turned into the stretch and headed for the wire.

The first heat was the best of the race. The owner of Patchen, W. S. Haws, at the last moment decided to drive in place of Dickerson. The scoring was prompt and at the fourth attempt the horses started to pace the race of their lives.

At the quarter Gentry was a length and a half behind, while Patchen and Searchlight were on even terms. The leaders held the same position when the half mile pole was reached and Gentry had dropped back another length and a half. All three were driving at the three quarters, but it was not until the stretch was entered that the mass of cheering and wildly excited spectators saw coming out of a cloud of dust in the rear of the leaders, who were pacing like a team, a flash of hoofs and the steel gray cap and coat of Billy Andrews, who, with a masterly hand, guided his magnificent charge to the outside of the track and shot to the front like a meteor. Faster and faster, with every fraction of a sec-seemingly gaining greater speed as they came on toward the wire, moved the flying sulkies until the gap was closed. A hundred yards from the wire Patchen went in the air and Searchlight's driver began to use the whip. Andrews drove steadily, leaning far forward as if to help his horse, and the little stallion, with a mighty rush, passed under the wire a neck and a trifle more to the good.

In the second and deciding heat, Searchlight acted badly a few lengths after the start and broke often, the race narrowing down to Gentry and Patchen. It was a close battle the whole distance till the stretch was reached. Then Gentry forged ahead

After the race was over, W. H. Harison, officiating, announced that he was ready to match Searchlight against Gentry for $10,000, the race to the care of our interests in that local take place at any time within the

A TALE OF TORTURE.

There Were Few Dry Eyes in the Audience During the Recital of Dreyfus' Sufferings in Prison.

RENNES, Aug. 17.—During Tuesday norning's session of the Dreyfus courtmartial most of the time was occupied ov M. Lebon, minister of the colonies for the greater part of the time that Lebon has been accused of being responsible for the torture to which the risoner was subjected.

M. Lebon testified that there was no needless severity shown. He was obliged, he said, to resort to extraorlinary measures because of the danger of the prisoner being rescued.

Lebon's testimony ended in a string of excuses and lame apologies to Dreyfus. When he had concluded the prisoner was asked if he wished to quesion the witness.

"No," replied Dreyfus, "I have nothng to say to the man who for five years helped to make my sufferings agonizing and barbarous. I am not nere to complain, but to defend my honor."

The recorder of the court then read from the detailed government reports of the prisoner while on Devil's Island. He quoted heart-rendering appeals and WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Another very complaints made by Dreyfus because ne received no letters from his wife or word of his children.

FIVE WOMEN ASSAULTED.

Four Suspects Have Been Arrested-The Outrages Occurred in the Suburbs of Little Rock.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 17. - Five brutal assaults by a Negro man on white women have occurred in Little Rock in the past 24 hours. It is generally believed that all these crimes were committed by the same Negro, but three suspects have been arrested, and if the right man can be positively identified he may receive summary punishment. The victims of the assaults are all highly respected white women of this city. Their names are Mrs. Belle Aiken, 2114 Chester street; Mrs. Milton Young, 2401 State street; Mrs. Kennedy, Fourteenth and Jones street; Miss Emma Longcoy, 1420 Booker street; a young lady at Twentieth and Cross streets.

All of the assaults occurred in the suburbs of the city.

The first was that of Mrs. Aiken, which occurred Tuesday afternoon. As Mrs. Aiken was passing Twenty. first and High streets the Negro seized her and dragged her to the woods. forming a quorum, and the governor | She resisted and cried for help. park. She was knocked down, beaten and choked. Her children ran for assistance and the Negro fled. Mrs. Kennedy's injuries are very painful.

About 11 o'clock Emma Longcoy, the 11-year-old daughter of a grocer, was attacked and beaten by a Negro half a dozen blocks from West End park. She escaped from her assailant. City and county officers, together with a large number of citizens, were by this time scouring the vicinity for the Negro. The greatest excitement prevailed and the anger of the citizens in the neighborhood was thoroughly

The fifth assault occurred early Wednesday morning on a well known young lady at Twentieth and Cross streets. She was likewise knocked down and badly beaten. Her face was badly swollen and disfigured from the effects of the blows.

Four Negroes have been arrested as suspects and lodged in jail. They all answer the description of some of the victims. They are Ed Wright, Joe Gardner, Will Morgan and James Randle. Wright has been positively identified by Mrs. Kennedy as the man who assaulted her. As soon as darkness fell men began flocking toward the vicinity of the jail, and by 10 o'clock fully 2,000 were on the streets.

About 11:30 o'clock an attempt was made to storm the jail. The leader of the mob was arrested by Sheriff Kavanaugh on a charge of inciting a riot He Mangled a Woman and the Husband and lodged in jail.

Yaqui Indians Routed.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 17 .- The latest information from the federal troops under command of Gen. Torres is that they encountered the Yaqui Indians on the left bank of the river between Potam and Medano. By a successful flank movement Gen. Torres surprised the rebels at 8:30 o'clock in the morning and routed them. The Indians made but a weak resistance and soon dispersed in the forest along the river, being hotly pursued. They left seven killed and a large number wounded. The loss to the federal troops was one killed and one death from sunstroke.

He Would Have Gone If He Could Have Summoned Up Courage to Ask for His Hat.

"I always was a bashful sort of a fellow For more than a week a gang of so when I was young," said Ananias Fisher, as passed his plate for the third piece pie. He was dining out with friends and Negroes in this county nearly every wished them to understand his tempera-

A FAIR DEMONSTRACTION.

They Were Satisfied the Thing Could Be Done, But by Some One Else.

Mark Twain and his friend, Rev. Joseph H. Twitchell, once planned a bicycle ride from Hartford, Conn. (their home), to Boston, and wrote beforehand to an acquaintance in the latter city, telling him their line of route and what time he might expect to see them arrive. The appointed time was an ideal one for a long run, and the two friends started quite early in the morning. But neither of them was accustomed to long rides, so after 12 or 15 miles had been ridden, it became apparent that each of the riders was waiting for the other to say something. Finally Twain said, as they came in sight of the railway station in a small town they had entered: "Let's take

Of course Mr. Twitchell agreed, and so the acquaintance in Boston was surprised by seeing the two friends walk up to his door about one o'clock in the afternoon. He had not expected them till evening, but he greeted them warmly, and addressing Mr. Twitchell, said: "Well, you made pretty good time, didn't you? "Oh, fairly good time for novices," was Over 3,000 were in their seats in the econvention hall of whom over 90 were delegates, all seated at 1:55 p. m. when Hon. Phil Thompson, sr., called the convention to order. Jno. W. Greene, of Owens county, temporary chairman and subsequently permanent chairman, made a strong speech on take ing the chair.

While the committees were out ex-Congressman Owens, of Scott, Capt. Sheeney, of Marion, Theodore Hallam, of Kenton, made addresses. Resolutions adopted declare the Louisville nominee is not the nominee of the democratic party and demands the enactment of a law giving force and effect to Section 151 of the state constitution, which provides for deprivation of office of any person who, to secure his nomination or election, has been guilty of the unlawful use of money or other things of value, or has been guilty of fraud or intimidation, bribery or corrupt practices, etc., etc.

It indorses the principles and platform of the Chicago convention in 1896 and Bryan for president in 1900; denounces the Goebel election law; favors a regulation of railroads so as to prevent extortion; demands the abolishment of the Chinn book bill; condemns McKinley for the alleged advancement of the interest of trusts.

Hon. Theodore Hallam, of Kenton, nominated John Young Brown for governor, and the nomination was made by acclamation.

After the nomination of Brown the convention adjourned until 8 p. m., when Brown accepted the nomination in a lengthy and impressive speech. The entire ticket was nominated by acclamation.

In the race, however, for superintendent of public instruction, Revs. A. W. Overstreet, of Spencer, and E. O. Guerrant, of Jessamine, were nominated. The former withdrew and the latter was chosen by acclamation. The ticket is:

John Young Brown, Jefferson, governor.

Maj. P. P. Johnston, Fayette, lieutenant governor.

Lawrence P. Tanner, Owensboro, attorney general. Frank A. Pasteur, Caldwell, auditor.

John C. Droege, Kenton, treasurer. Edward L. Hines, Warren, secretary of state.

E. O. Guerrant, of Jessamine, superintendent public instruction.

G. W. Vandeveer, of Lincoln, commissioner of Agriculture.

An interesting party question arose soon after the nomination. The committee on organization brought in a report in which it claimed the democratic emblem. The Goebel following will also claim it and the matter may have to be settled in Anti-G ebel men claim that as the Louisville convention did not claim it their party may do so with legal propriety. A formal claim will be made to the secretary of state, perhaps Thursday, and as he is a republican, will likely grant it. The convention adjourned sine dine at 11:20 p. m.

pinos opened fire. Their force was esimated by Col. Smith at 1,500, although the residents afterward said it exceeded these figures by a thousand. The enemy sent heavy volleys against the whole American line. Most of their shooting, as usual, was high, but they concentrated their heaviest fire down the track upon the artillery. Col. Smith kept the whole line moving rapidly with frequent rushes. The insurgents attempted to flank Capt. Evans, and therefore two companies were sent to the right and drove them back.

Unable to stand our continuous volleys, the Filipinos abandoned the trenches and retreated through the town northward. It appears that they had only received their supply of ammunition Thursday morning. Had they been attacked sooner, they could have made little resistance.

Secretary Root Desires That the Entire Body of Reinforcements Reach Gen. Otis During October.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17. - Secretary Root has been in consultation with the officers of the quartermaster's department with a view to expediting the movement of the Philippine reinforcements, and as a result he Wednesday afternoon directed that four additional transports be chartered. They are and C. F. Nelson. These four ships have a capacity of 2,550 men. The Pueblo is now at San Francisco and the Columbia at Portland, Ore. The other two vessels are expected to arrive at San Francisco in ten days, and it is expected that all of them will be ready to sail for Manila by September

It is Secretary Root's desire that the entire body of re-inforcements for Gen. Otis' army may reach the Philippines for service during the month of October at the latest, and to that end he has been quietly negotiating for additional ships. It is now believed that all of the 10 ments will have landed Manila by the time the dry season opens A short and successful campaign by this new army would of course obviate the necessity for sending any additional volunteers to the Philippines and the plans under consideration at the war department are said to be predicted on that idea, it being the intention that whatever additional troops may be recruited will be held in reserve for possible contin-

A Mutual Surprise

My Dear Daughter-I have long felt how much ny home and children needed a mother's love and care. I have been willing in this respect, as in every other, to sacrifice my own feelings to their good, but it is not an easy matter to find just the right person to fill so important a position, and I do not wish to act hastily. A few weeks ago I was introduced to a widow lady of the name of Norton, finding her, on further acquaintance, to be all that I could desire, either as a companion or a mother to my children. She is a most kind and excellent lady, and I trust that you will be prepared to extend to her that respect and affection that are her due. She has one son, who is away at school, which will be pleasant for you, as you have no brother. We shall be home Thursday. Your affectionate father, P. S.-You were very wise in not engaging yourself without consulting me to the young man you mention. A young girl like you don't know what love is. Five years hence will be time enough for you to think of such a thing.

This was the letter that Anne Leslie received from her father in reply to the one she had written him, overflowing with the glad anticipations to which her newborn love had given rise.

For a time she sat speechless with anger and amazement.

The idea of her father ever marrying again had never once entered her mind. Why should he? Was she not there to keep house for him? And when she left, as, of course, she should in time, would not Marion then be ready to take her place? She never heard of anything so

And to think that her poor mother, who had been hardly two years in her grave, should be so soon forgotten! If she thought that her adored Charles

Edward would ever be so false to her memory, she was sure that it would break her heart. But the postscript was the unkindest cut of all. The slighting manner in which her father alluded to "the young man," whose name she had written to him in full-Charles Edward FitzHenry Stubbs-was more wounding than the harshest invective.

And to presume to think that she knew nothing of love, who had experienced it in sweetness and power!

Full of these indignant thoughts, Anne sat down and penned an epistle to her adored Charles Edward, detailing her grievances and ending with the declaration that she would never, never submit to be domineered over by a stepmother and that she would ever be true to the first and only love of her life.

The next mail brought a reply, stating, free. together with many protestations of un-NEVER were such values offered in dying affection, "that he could truly sympathize with her feelings, in view of her father's marriage, having just received the intelligence that his mother was to take another husband. She had given him one stepfather when he was a boy, and he would never submit to the rule of

He would be there on Thursday, to demand in person her hand of her father. If he refused, they would fly together to some happy place where cruel fathers and stepfathers were unknown.

Charles Edward was as good as his word. Promptly on the following Thursday he made his appearance at the house of the father of his adored Anne.

Scarcely were the first rapturous greetings over when the sound of carriage wheels was heard.

Anne turned pale. "They have come!" she cried, starting to her feet.

"Let 'em come," responded Charles Edward defiantly. "You are not afraid, I hope, when I am here?" As he said this curiosity impelled him to turn his eyes to the window. "Good heavens!" he ejaculated as they fell upon a lady who was lighting from a carriage. "Why, it looks like-but, no: Mr. Leslie led his wife up to where his daughter was standing.

As Mrs. Leslie turned from the constrained greeting of her new daughter her eyes fell upon the young man back of her, who stood staring at her in speechless amazement.

"Why. Charles!"

"Why, mother!" "I never thought of seeing you here!"

"Nor I you!" "Who is this?" inquired Mr. Leslie, looking in bewilderment from one to the lie. "Charles, this is your stepfather." "And my future father-in-law, I trust," responded Charles Edward as he shook hands with his mother's new husband. "We'll see about that, my boy," said Mr. Leslie, laughing. "If your mother is willing, I shall have no objection."

The four passed a very pleasant evening. Charles Edward voted his stepfather to be one of the nicest men he ever met, and Anne thought no lady could be more agreeable than her new mother.

Charles Edward remained at home a week and then went back to school, taking with him the assurance that if he studied diligently and both he and Anne were of the same mind at the end of the

is not a chance remedy. Its good effects are readily experienced by all expectant mothers who use it. Years ago it passed the experimental stage. While it always shortens labor and lessens the pains of delivery, it is also of the greatest benefit during the earlier months of pregnancy. Morning sickness and nervousness are readily overcome, and the liniment relaxes the strained muscles, permitting them to expand without causing distress. Mother's Friend gives great recuperative power to the mother, and her recovery is sure and rapid. Danger from rising and selled breasts is done away with completely.

AN IDOL OF CLAY.

What did she give for her wedding-ring? All that a woman may! What did the gifts to the giver bring? Only an idol of clay. All the sweet dreams of her girlhood years, All that a heart could hold; All of her hopes and all of her fears; All of her smiles and all of her tears, For one little circle of gold.

Told the the world of the bitter cheer? Ah, no! With a smiling face She clathed ker idol from head to feet With the garments of her grace. And no one knew of the tears she wept; Her griefs they were never guessed, for hid in her heart of hearts she kept Her thorns of woe. And so she slept With her hands across her breast. -Nixon Waterman, in L. A. W. Bulletin.

CHAPTER III. MME. D'ENTRANGUES.

Walking down the Via San Dominico, 1 turned to the right by the Borgo di San Vito, and here I was recognized and hooted. Pressing hurriedly forwards, and aided opcortunely by the passage of a body of men at arms, coming through the street in a direction opposite to that of my followers, I succeeded in shaking off my termentors, and turning again to the right up a narrow street, entered a barber's shop to have my beard removed in order to disguise myself as far as possible. The barber, a fussy little fellow, placed before me a mirror of polished steel, and as he set to work stropping a razor on the palm of his hand, I removed my cap, and for the first time observed that the hair of my head was thickly streaked

"Your excellency has doubtless come to join the army," said the barber, in a tone of inquiry, as he drew his razor across my

"An, yes, yes; I have just come," I replied, and the little man went on:

"There have been great doings to-day. Tis said the duke has ordered the Count di Savelli to be executed for having in his poscount stole it, but we know better, don't a woman!" we, your excellence?" and the little fool chuckled to himself. He went on without waiting for an answer. "Ah, yes; the ladies can never resist us soldiers. I may tell you that I served with Don Carlo Baglioni, and can bear my pike-there now, I think that side is clean shaven—as I was saying before, it was hard on the Marquis di Savelli; a gallant noble whom I frequently saw-pardon, your excellency, it is but a scratch after all -had you not moved so suddenly, still only a scratch, nothing for a soldier. The Marquis di Savelli, as I said, was a regular customer of mine, and he had a lovely head of bair, your excellency. It was not so much before I took him in hand. Ecco! but in a menth you should have seen! He came in here in his free, easy way, and flung me ten crowns. 'Buy a ribbon for Madonna Giulia with that, Messer Pazzi,' says he; 'and harkee, send me over six more bottles of your elixir of St. Symmachus. Maldetto!' he exclaimed, twisting his curls between his fingers, 'but she adores me now.' Now who, I say, could she have been but-tchick? Diavolo? it is done; never a cleaner shave in Rome itself. If your excellency's fortune grows as well as your hair, I could wish you

I rose in silence, and, flinging him a crown, bade him pay himself, and, receiving my change, hurried out, declining all Messer Pazzi's entreaties to bear with me a bottle of his precious elixir of St. Symmachus or any other accursed balsam. I saw at a glance that the removal of my beard caused a considerable alteration in my appearance, and imagined if I could but change my attire my most intimate friends would not know me unless they observed closely; and even then might perhaps fail to recognize me. This view, as it turned out, was not quite correct, and I had yet to learn how difficult a thing it is to arrange a complete disguise.

A few doors further on I laid out some of my money in the purchase of a stout leather buff coat, a long, dark mantle, and a cap to match. The cap was ornamented with a single black feather; and when I had donned these garments I felt that, wrapped in the cloak, with the cap pulled well over my eyes, and the feather standing defiantly out to the side, I wanted but a fathom of sword to make myself as ruffianly-looking a brav as ever trod the purlieus of Naples or Rome But the sword was some difficulty, for my crowns had dwindled to 16. Fortunately I had on my finger a sapphire ring, and this I pledged for 20 crowns, and made my way to the armorer's. I there selected a strong, straight weapon, with a plain cross handle and a cutting blade, such as would be useful for rough work, and, after some haggling, got it for ten pieces. The armorer assured me that it was a sound blade, and I may say it did me good service. It now hangs in my bedchamber, a little chipped, it is true, but as bright and as fit for use as the day I paid for it, with a heavy heart, in Don Piero's shop, near the gate of St. Lawrence in

I began now to feel the want of food, for beyong the cup of Chianti brought to me by the under officer I had tasted nothing since yesterday evening, and therefore stepping into an ordinary called for a flagon of wine and a pasty. Whilst engaged in assaulting these, half a dozen men, whom I recognized as belonging to the garrison, entered the hostel, but to my joy I saw I was not known to them, and after a casual glance at me they fell to eating their meal.

I was, however, perforce compelled to liscen to their conversation, which was carried on in the loud tone men of their class affect, and found to my annoyance that they were discussing me, and the events of the day. In order to escape this I was about to rise, when I heard one of them mention D'Entrangues' name, and stopped to listen.

"He has left for Florence, and, it is said, intends to offer his sword to the Signory," said one.

"And the other?" "Heaven knows! Perhaps Braccio's arm has reached him, poor devil!' "Well, he was a good soldier and a stout enough, and settling my account with the host, stepped forth into the street, intending to depart from the town by the Porta En Spirite or Roman gate, leaving the camp over my shoulder, and to make my way to Florence as soon as possible. There I would meet D'Entrangues, and kill him like a mad dog. I ground my teeth with rage when I thought I had no horse, nor even the means to purchase one, and must trudge it like any contadino. But, if I had to crawl on my hands and knees, I was determined to reach Florence and D'Entrangues. It was, however, not yet sundown, and my idea was to leave the city when it was well dusk to avoid all possible chance of recognition. I meant to have passed the interval in the inn; but, as I felt this was impossible, it was necessary to find another spot where I could lay in quiet. With this end in view I crossed the Piazza di Popolo in an easterly direction, and went on until I came to the Franciscan church, into which I entered, not, I am sorry to say, with any desire for devotion, but merely because I was less likely to be disturbed there than anywhere else I could imagine. I was right, in so far that on entering the church I found it, as I thought, empty, but on looking round I saw beneath the newly-completed wheel window, the work of Guillaume de Marseille, a kneeling figure, apparently absorbed in prayer. I had approached quite close before I became aware that I was not alone. and was about to turn away, when, perhaps startled by the sound of my footfalls on the marble pavement, the person rose hurriedly and looked towards me. It was Mme. D'Entrangues. Her glance met mine for a second as that of a stranger, but as I was mov ing away some trick of gesture, or perhaps the hot anger in my eyes, told her who I was, for, calling my name, she came towards me with outstretched hands.

"Di Savelli," she said, for I made no advance, "do you not know me?"

"Madame," I bowed, "I am unfit to touch "No, no-a thousand times no! It is I who am unworthy.' I still remained silent, and she asked, with a passionate emphasis: "Man, you have never sinned?" The words struck me like a shot. I felt in a moment I had no right to stand in judgment. "God knows," I replied, "I have, and I have been punished.' With that she took hold of my hand, and then suddenly burst into tears, weeping and did what I could to appease her. "I could not help it," she said; "I was not strong enough to speak or to let you speak.

tears began afresh. In a little time she grew better, and I seized the opportunity to point out the danger she ran of being seen speaking to me, and suggested that she should make her way home. It was impossible to escort her my self, but would I walk a little way behind keep her in sight, an! see she came to no harm. I urged this all the more as I saw it was growing late, and that she was without any attendants and far from the camp. "You mistake," she said; "I have not far to go. In fact, I am at present the guest of the convent here." "And-" I did not finish the sentence, but she understood. I had forced myself to ask, to hear, if possible, confirmation of D'Entrangues' movements. "He," she answered-"he has left the army and gone towards Florence." "And you?" "I stay here for the present."

Her tone more than her words convinced me that she had been abandoned by D'Entrangues, and it added another mark to my score against him.

"Why should I not tell you?" she continued. "After, when it was all over, the duke struck his name off the army, and he left in an hour. Before he went, he came and told me all, laughing at your ruin. I did not know man could be so vile. God help me -it is my husband I speak of! He offered to take me with him, but I refused; and he left, mocking like a devil, with words I cannot repeat. He was not done with you or with me, he said, as he went. I came here at once, and perhaps when Mme. de la Tremouille returns to France I shall be enabled to go with her in her train."

"Excuse my asking it," I said, "but have "Oh, yes," she smiled, sadly, "it is not that

It was a moment of danger to both. Leper as I was, I had but to lift my hand, but to say a word, and here was one who would have followed me like a dog. I felt her weakness in her look, in the touch of her hand, which shivered as it lay in mine like a captive bird. At once a fire leapt up within me. I had lost-everything. Why not throw revenge after my losses, and with her by my side seek a new fortune with a new name? The Grand Turk needed soldiers, and what mattered it whether it was cross or crescent that I served?

But the woman became strong as I grew

CHAPTER IV.

A FOOL'S CAP AND A SORE HEART. I was not so dense as to fail to grasp the extent of the peril I had escaped, or to fully realize the evil strength of the temptation, which came upon me as suddenly as a sneeze. It is rare in matters of this kind for wicked thoughts to be of slow growth; they spring at once to life, full-armed. I thanked God in my heart that I was able to sweep aside the base desire, which covered my soul like a black cloud, and refrained from taking advantage of madame's momentary weakness. I could not but see I was to blame myself.

I. the elder and the stronger, should have foreseen the probable consequences of a friendship such as ours, and my sorrow for her was mixed with the deepest regret for my part in the transaction. I banished all' idea of attacking D'Entrangues through his which had ever conceived such a thought. self. Be this as it may, his stroke was successful, in, and, sticking a torch in a hole in the in that to all intents and purposes it had floor between us, resumed his seat, and said, utterly blasted me. I was worse than dead. abruptly: It was no ordinary revenge. In those troublous times, a blow from a dagger could have easily rid him from a wife of whom he was sick, or a man whom he hated, and no one would have thrown the matter in his teeth. But with devilish cruelty, he inflicted wounds which could never heal, and left his victims to live. It was impossible to nit such a man back, in a way to make him feel to the utmost extent the agony he had administered; the only thing was to take from him his worthless life; this he doubtless valued most of all things, and I meant to deprive him of it, if he stood at the altar of Christ. Moved by such thoughts, and with my cloak drawn well over the lower part of my face, I hastened towards the Roman gate, reaching it just as it was to be closed for the night. In fact, as I passed out, the huge doors came together behind me with a groaning, and at the same time I heard the dull boom of the evening gun from the camp, followed immediately by the distant peals of the trumpets of the cavalry As the crow flies, Florence was but a few leagues distant; but I obviously would have to journey by side paths, over hill and across valley to avoid observation, and this would occupy at least two days, unless my travels were permanently stopped by my being cut off by a privateering party from the camp, or by any other untoward accident. Neither contingency was unlikely. for the writ of the king ran barely a league from the army, and the country was full of

In this mind I pressed on, intending to lie at Bucine for the night, or, if no better accommodation offered, to sleep as a soldier should, wrapped in my cloak, with the sky for a roof. As I went on, I found I was relying a little too much on my knowledge of the road, and a blue mist, which rose from the ground, made it impossible to pick my way by landmarks. The moon, come over me with words I cannot repeat. It was out by this time, shone fitfully through the not for me to fling reproaches, and I softened bank of clouds, which was shifting uneasily overhead, and the wind, rising steadily, marked rain. I stirred myself all the faster, for I was in no mind to add a wetting to my session a favor of madame. They say the Oh, you do not know what such a thing is to misfortunes, and a drop or two of rain that caught me showed I had but little leisure to hurried along this; but before I covered mile the moon was obscured, and the wind dropped. It now began to rain, and the darkness was so thick, that I could only just follow the road. Soon the track died away into nothing, and I found myself floundering, over my ankles in mud, and up to the waist in wet rushes. At any moment I might strike a quicksand, with which these marshes abound, so I used my sword as a search-pole, stepping only where I found foothold, a dozen inches or so below the surface of the bog. In this perplexity, imagine my relief to see the blaze of a fire shoot up beyond a small rising ground before me, and throw an arc of light into the darkness, against which the falling rain glittered like fine wires of silver. I shouted aloud and to my joy got an answer.

"Who is there? What is the matter?" "A traveler," I replied, "who has lost hi way in this cursed swamp. Whoever you are, you will make a friend and find a reward if you lead me out of this."

"Come straight on, there is no danger be yond getting your feet wet.'

"They are that already," I answered, and pressed on, having absolutely to force my way through the wet rushes, which wound themselves around me impeding my progress terribly. Moreover, so sticky was the slime below that I thought every moment it would pull the boots off my feet. Struggling in this manner for a hundred yards or more guided by the fire, and an occasional shout from my unknown friend, I at last touched hard ground, and with a "Thank heaven!" got out of the swamp, and found myself at the foot of the hillock, behind which the fire was blazing.

"Which way to Bucine?" I called out.

"Then come round the shoulder of the hill to your right, and follow your nose. You will find shelter here. Bucine you could never reach to-night, and a dog should not be out in this weather."

"True, friend," I muttered, and with a loud "thanks" to the apparently hospitable unknown, I followed his directions, and, rounding the hillock, saw before me, spluttering in the rain, a huge fire of pine logs, at the entrance to a hut of the rudest description. Inside, I perceived a sitting figure, over which the light from the fire alternately cast a glare and then left it in dark- Free Press. ness. I made my way to the open door, which hung back on hinges of rope, and entered without further ceremony.

"Humph!" snorted my host, without moving from his position. "I said it was no night for a dog to be out, I did not say any thing of a wolf.'

This change of tone was not so surprising, for, dripping wet, covered with mud. and white with fatigue, my general appear ance was but little calculated to reassure anyone. Yet, as I hung my cloak on a rough wooden peg which caught my eye, I could not help laughing in mockery as I an-

"Tush, man! There is no fear. You bear too long a sword to have a purse worth the picking, and you are not supping," a look of hate passed over his features as he dropped out slowly, "with the Borgia. See, I will give you a toast-Revenge." He took a pull at the skin and flung it to me.

"I drink to that," I said, tasting the wine in my turn. Here then was another who like me, sought for consolation in ven-

HONOR ABOVE GOLD.

A Striking Incident Which Aptly Illastrates the French Character.

Speaking of French politics, I heard a most extraordinary story of another strange secret of contemporary life. Some years ago one might see in a restaurant at night, playing dominos quietly or conversing in tranquil tones, a gentleman named Levy. He was a man who knew more of the secret history of the courts of Europe than any man of his time. To get a full account of his personality and history you must spend an evening with "Joe" Lyons, the owner of the Trocadero and a score of other restaurants, one of the most brilliant reconteurs as well as one of the best fellows in all London. Mr. Levy was a private detective, employed whenever a task of extreme delicacy and enormous importance was on hand. He was retained by the Bank of England, among other institutions, and I have heard that his services were esteemed so valuable that he got the magnificent salary of £10,000 a year from that institution.

Well, just after the downfall of the Commune, Mr. Levy was intrusted with one of the most delicate and I might say terrible missions in his life. There were several communist refugees in London. Levy tracked them out. A man of his word, without enthusiasm, acquainted with all the seamy side of life and of men, he yet had a broad, sympathetic imagination; and he was astounded by the picture he found in the miserable den-if I remember rightly it was a stable—in which he discovered the objects of his search. These men, who but a few weeks before had the government and the revenues of the great city of Paris at their command, were engaged in making a wretched bowl of soup, which was to be the one meal-and the one meal of them allfer 24 hours. Not one penny had stuck to their palms of all the millions that were at their mercy! "These men may be madmen," he said to a friend to whom he told the story, "but, according to their lights, they are patriots!"

His wonder grew as they refused scornfully to surrender some papers which had fallen into their possession, in spite of dazzling offers of gold, which, as agent of the French government, he was authorized to offer them. They knew the horror and the terrible and appalling importance of the domestic secret in the life of a great man of which they held proofs, but they decided to keep the proofs until they thought it right or wrong to publish the story to the world. And, though they refused the gold, they never told the secret, and France and Europe were saved one of the most cruel and devastating scandals of our times.-N. Y. Herald.

Why the Light Went Out.

In front of the high altar in the cuthedral at Salzburg there is a great lamp that is supposed to burn "forever and a day." One morning, years ago, worshipers were surprised to see it go out, and this was repeated morning after morning, always about the same time. It was thought the attendant had neglected to give it sufficient oil and though he declared his innocence he was told that he would be discharged if the oversight were repeated. Unwilling to deal unjustly with the man, the dean of the cathedral hid himself one night to see if he could solve the mystery. He had not long to wait. About ten o'clock a big rat was seen descending the rope by which the lamp was suspended. Having reached the oil. it fed freely and then went away by the way it came. Needless is it to sav that the attendant held his place .- Detroit

It was after the publication of the "Lives of the Poets" that Dr. Farr, being engaged to dine with Sir Joshua Reynolds, mentioned that on his way there he had seen a clever caricature of Dr. Johnson being flogged around Parnassus by the nine muses. The admirers of Gray and others, who thought their favorites harshly treated in the "Lives," were laughing at Farr's account, when Dr. Johnson was announced. Sir Joshua introduced Dr. Farr, and to his infinite embarrassment repeated the story. Johnson turned to Farr and said: "Sir, I am very glad to hear this. I hope the day will never arrive when I shall neither be the object of ridicule nor calumny, for then I shall be neglected and forgotten."-Detrois

MILKERS AND MILKING.

Six Cows to One Man Is About the Right Proportion for the Average Farm Employe.

There seems to be a great deal of discussion among the farmers in different localities nowadays in regard to forms the back of manger. The horses that when he is thus engaged no one the subject of good milkers. The remark that it is now almost impossible to find good milkers is quite frequently heard among dairymen. This is a great mistake, says a writer in Rural New Yorker. I thoroughly believe that there are just as good milkers in this and other localities as there ever were, if not better.

The farmer who depends on day hands for his help, as a general rule, is the one who complains most bitterly in regard to this matter. The average man who is hired by the day will not milk even if he can. Wherever or whenever I find a good month hand, one who stays on the farm continually, one who is not constantly listening for the sound of the six o'clock whistle, one who does not go to town every night, I find a good milker.

A cow should be milked as quickly as possible. A good milker can milk 12 cows an hour. The muscles of the forearm, wrist and hands of a good milker must be well developed; therefore, as a rule, women are poor milkers. They require too much time to milk a cow. The evil resulting from this practice is that the cows do not readily give down their milk. Some farmers expect a man to do too much of this work.

The number of cows that a man milks should depend on the amount and nature of other labor that he performs. As a rule, I do not believe that a man should be allowed to milk more than right of alleys; these extend to six cows.

PRACTICAL, DAIRY HINTS.

VALUABLE SUGGESTION.

Roads Without Much Trouble or Expense.

It is easily possible for farmers to keep country roads in a much better condition than most of them are at present. The individual can afford to do road mending on the same principle that he repairs fences and buildings, "It pays me." And a land owner ought to feel as much shame, even guilt, before the general public over a mudhole that can be drained, or over a choked-up sluice along his premises as he ought over neglected cattle or a display of

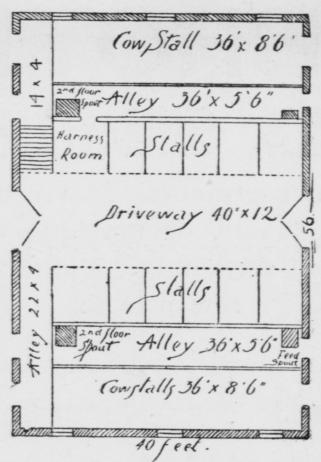

It is not necessary to wait for the road-working season to come. The most profitable, common sense work can be put in a little at a time, if at the right time. Drainage is the beginning and the ending of the whole matter, if roads are to be roads and not sloughs. Watering troughs and hillside springs are common causes of standing water, yet it is a very simple matter to direct the water flowing from them in the way it should go. A stone, a loose board, a chunk of soil washed down against the end of a sluice may choke it up till it is worse than nothing. Five minutes' work would send the water rushing through its proper channel. It is not uncommon to see water following the wheel rut for rods, when a man with half an eye can also see that a mere cut through the ridge at the edge of the road would lead the water into the ditch, perhaps down a bank.

Dropping into a bad hole or a soft place a few superfluous stones now and then to keep the water out would work a double-headed blessing to all passing that way. Heaving out a few stubborn old stones from the track would work detriment to the blacksmith and wagon maker, perhaps, but a big saving to thus well kept up, the yearly toll of and Park row. public service would count more and more toward the good roads of which all are dreaming and talking. Spouts from feed bins on second floor are at ground floor, as feed does not run well through spouts. Grain and feed are carried up by an elevator which is in the center of barn and which dumps into spouts leading to the bins.-Laurence Doolittle, in Farm and Home.

THE CHERRY TREE

It Needs But Little Pruning, But Requires Heavy Doses of Mineral Fertilizers.

When a cherry tree gets into full bearing and is regularly picked each year, enough twigs are broken off during the harvesting of the crop to prune the trees sufficiently. But if the tree grows on low, wet ground it often runs too much to wood, the fruit either does not set or rots, because it is too much shaded by leaves, which are caused by too luxuriant growth. In such eases severe root pruning and cutting out the center limbs while in leaf will sufficiently check growth, so much and will also bear fruit. After the cherry tree begins bearing, the wastage of twigs broken off in harvesting the crop checks wood growth sufficiently to make the tree bear full crops thereafter. But it must be remembered that so much of the cherry is in the stone, which requires heavy doses of potash | GRAIN-Wheat-No. 2 red to perfect it, that if the cherry tree is not liberally supplied with potash and testable of weeds is rye in a wheat field, other mineral fertilizers it will soon and yet such cases are frequent. Even begin to die. The cherry tree never two varieties of the same kind of plants fails to bloom and set fruit so long should never be allowed together. If as any part of it lives. It prunes itself two blades of grass or stalks of corn by letting enough of its limbs die so are growing side by side and do not that what remain can produce as much thrive, one of them should be removed and as fine fruit as they ever did. INTERESTED IN BIBLE.

Pleasure Over Its Stories-

Rev. T. J. N. Gattrell, who for ten years has been a colporteur of the American Bible society in northern China, has returned to the United States. In his last report of the society he says: "Ever since the presentation copy of the New Testament went to the dowager empress our depository has been visited almost daily by officials of the court. They say the emperor observes 'Worship' day (Sunday), and that he frequently goes to a lonely place to pray to 'Tien Chu' (God), and dares disturb him. Some time ago he purchased through our agency a large number of scientific and Scriptural books, and we hear he is delighted with some of the stories of the patriarchs, and particularly with an illustrated life of Christ, which he has ordered to be bound in velvet and to be put in a convenient place in the library. He has applied to our store for copies of books treating of the differences between the Catholic and Protestant churches."

Treatment of Tuberculosis.

The Paris Therapeutical society has arrived at the following conclusion as to sanitarium treatment: Considered from a disciplinary, hygienic and dietetic point of view, it is the best for tuberculosis which has yet been practiced. The best sanitarium is one where climatic advantages can be superadded. The municipal authorities of health resorts should further the erection of sanitariums for the tuberculous. Phthisical patients should not be admitted into the wards of a general hospital, and sanitariums where poor people can be treated gratuitously should be provided in the vicinity of all arge towns.

How a Wise Brahman Taught a Boautiful

To an ancient, pious Brahman was a grandson born. Full of joy at the blessing which had again happened to his house, he said: "I will go out hence and even through one good deed."

great and beneficent spirit, the old man stepped into the fields, and, in the shade of the trees, each of his thoughts was a prayer. Still sparkled the drops of a freshly fallen shower on stalks, blossoms and leaves.

Although he had already seen the spring 90 times, nature seemed to him again made young and fairer than ever, for she grows not old to him who reveres her creator and recognizes in the figure the benevolent sculptor.

The old man set on his way forward. and on the beaten path he found an acorn. The rain had already, through its fertilizing power, sent the germ forth, and the shell burst asunder, but it could Paid policy holders since organization, not take root on the hard, bare path. He stooped, took it up and said:

"How charming it is to be brought thus far on my way, for easily hadst thou been trodden in pieces by the foot of the wanderer or withered by the solar rays. Happy shall I be if I can here do a good work and, by deed, fulfill my inward sentiment and the aim of wise nature advance, who with each breath shows a purely vegetable, and contains no pot- benefit-even the smallest thankfulness

The youngster answered, "At thy childrejoice at having rescued the life of an rates than any other company. acorn!"

"Youngster," said the Brahman, "how art thou able to know my thoughts, since today is the first time thou hast seen me? And why dost thou jeer at the small service which I intend to perform to nature? To her is the acorn worth as much as the tree, and without the this were not. Even virtue, my son, sins with the little and from this mounts upward to the great, but the nearer she approaches to the completion of the original even so much the more she herself inclines to humility and simplicity, and then to her is worth the smallest as much as the highest. Sends not Brahma, too, his ray and dew on the blade of grass as well as on the palm tree?"

Thus spoke the old man with friendly seriousness. The youngster silently withdrew himself, full of veneration. He had seen the noble old man in his dignity. and he wished to be like him, for frivol ity itself must in its heart revere virtue. The Brahman set forward on his way to a hill which was overgrown round about with thorns. He met a peddler, who asked: "Thinkest thou that out of an acorn thou canst rear a tree for thyself? Thou wilt indeed scarcely have the joy of its

"Why plantest thou among thorns?" called out a herdsman opposite to him "Thou carest badly for thy nursling."

"Friend," replied the Brahman, "so long as the little plant is tender and small the thorns will shelter it from raw winds and injury, and when it grows up it will work a way through for itself, for it is other pills," writes Goo. H. Jacobs, of an oak. My son, I have obtained this of nature. The good mother considers equally the tenderness and strength of her foster children."

After the old man had completed his work ne trod gayly on the way back to his homestead. As he drew near to his hut his grandsons and great-grandsons sprang toward him and asked, "Where hast thou been so long?"

But he assembled them around him and recounted all which had happened to him and the little children caressed the old man while he spoke. The elder ones, how ever, hung on his lips and harkened to

"Oh," said the old man when he had finished, "there is certainly no place fairer than in the lap of nature, when the father loves his offspring and in the quiet circle of his family is beloved by his children. Yes, love abounding Brahma!" cried he, and glanced upward to heaven, RyE is scarce—I have a few hundred "in the quiet circle of nature and of do-

There died the old man, and THEY were like iron-those; children's his loved ones buried him on the hill, and Oxfords and slippers that go almost for whenever they saw the tree and heard its rustlings they were mindful of the life and wise sayings of the Brahman, even to the latest times, and recited from him and sought to become like him, for the Our baby was sick for a month with word of a wise man is as a grain of corn

> Imagery of the Malay Language. The study of the Malay language is commended by a writer in The Popular Science Monthly, who says it is easily learned and has much to repay for learning. It is replete with wonders and surprises, Malay. among other things, being the home of euphemism, where a spade is called anything but a spade. For instance, to die is beautifully expressed in Malay as a return to the mercy of Allah. A neighbor is one whom you permit to ascend the ladder of your cottage, and your friend is a sharer of your joys and sorrows. Interest is the flower of money, a spring is an eye of water, the sun the eye of day and a policeman all eyes.
